Opening April 17, 2021

The Incorrect Museum: Vignettes from the di Rosa Collection and
Ceramic Interventions: Nicki Green, Sahar Khoury, & Maria Paz

Napa, CA (April 6, 2021) di Rosa's first major exhibition of 2021, The Incorrect Museum: Vignettes from the di Rosa Collection, is curated by the organization's Executive Director Kate Eilertsen. Utilizing founder Rene di Rosa's unparalleled collection of Northern California art, the assemblage of works celebrates the region’s rich artistic and cultural legacy. “di Rosa’s collection teaches us about the important Bay Area art movements that took place between 1960–2010,” says Kate Eilertsen, Curator and Executive Director. “Nowhere else can you see all of the west coast artists that developed their own aesthetics around the rebellious spirit of the time.” Eilertsen organizes selections from the collection into six vignettes that pay tribute to di Rosa’s vision, allowing glimpses into the notable moments that shaped Northern California art in the twentieth century. Additionally, The Incorrect Museum exhibition will be accompanied by a robust website featuring artwork images, curatorial texts, and historical resources.

Also opening April 17 is Ceramic Interventions: Nicki Green, Sahar Khoury, & Maria Paz. Celebrating the Bay Area’s long-tradition of radical experimentation in ceramic arts, this exhibition highlights three area artists who join in the region’s enduring and thought-provoking ceramic tradition. In recent years, many of the area’s most provocative artists have chosen clay as their medium.
